Wenger Feeds Celebrates Safety and Years of Service

Rheems, PA (January 26, 2012) — Over 160 mill employees and truck drivers received awards for safe work performance at Wenger Feeds' annual Safety and Recognition Banquet held on January 21. In addition, eleven locations received awards for achieving zero OSHA recordable incidents for 2011.

The Rheems, PA-based feed manufacturer has an in-house safety program that is certified annually by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. "There are many outstanding employees who contribute daily to Wenger's safety record. Some of them have had 20 and even 30 consecutive safe working years," noted Rebecca Ranck, compliance coordinator. The company program has consistently achieved OSHA-recordable rates that are lower than the industry average.

In addition to safety awards, Feed Driver Joel Silverio and Mill Operator Brian Boyer were honored as employees of the year.

Recognition Awards went to twenty-four individuals with 10, 15, 20, 25, 30, and 35 years of service. "We are happy to be able to recognize our employees for their years of service milestones. Their expertise and experience is invaluable to us as we serve our customers, and we're happy they've chosen to spend their careers at Wenger Feeds," noted Jamie Rowley, chief administrative officer.
